

Ruffer Investment Company Limited

An alternative to alternative asset management

December 2021 Issue 199

During December, the Company's NAV rose by 0.2%. This compared with a rise of 4.7% in the FTSE All-Share index. This rounded off a solid year for the Company's NAV (+11.4%) and consolidated the gains made in the previous two years with the three year annualised return now running at 11.1%.

December began in the aftermath of the sell-off in reopening-sensitive assets, such as energy and cyclicals. The sharp decline in bond yields seen at the end of November continued into early December, as the discovery of the new Omicron variant threatened the vaccine-led economic recovery globally. We took advantage of this sell-off to reinforce core equity positions in energy, financials and industrials. This allowed the equity weight to rise marginally to 43%.

Overall, equities added +2.2% to the monthly return (with financials being the largest contributor) as evidence grew that Omicron might be less dangerous than first thought. Derivative protection (-0.4%) was a drag, as successes with equity put options were outweighed by a fall in credit spreads. Equity put options are held to protect against a withdrawal of liquidity by the Fed, and credit protection for weakness in the real economy.

Inflation-linked bonds detracted 1.6% from the monthly return as bond yields rose and inflation expectations did not. This is a dynamic that may persist in 2022 as economic strength continues and central banks begin to tighten. As a result, we reduced portfolio duration significantly, to nearly zero by the month end, using interest rate options.

At the same time, we retain our high conviction in both financial and energy equities. For financials, many investors cannot contemplate buying them and this is providing some spectacular prospective return opportunities. UniCredit's decision (and ability) to return 50% of its market cap to shareholders within the next three years shows just how undervalued they are. Rising real yields, which hurt index-linked bonds (which we own) and highly valued growth and tech stocks (which we do not own), should be accompanied by rising earnings for financial stocks. The picture for energy stocks is similar. There is something of a catch-22 in energy markets: energy demand continues to rise even as the world navigates the path to net zero, but there is a lack of investment in reliable supply, even though it is crucial to the net zero solution. This leaves higher energy prices the likely outcome and cheap valuations the entry point. We continue to focus on engaging with these companies to help and encourage them on the energy transition journey. The average energy stock in the Company returned 40% in 2021 and the average financial stock returned 35%.

We enter 2022 satisfied that our all-weather investment strategy has fared well through a wide range of investment conditions in the last three years. However, for all investors things are likely to get more rather than less difficult from here. In order to protect and grow their savings, investors will need to focus on risk rather than return and adopt a multi-asset approach containing genuinely uncorrelated assets.

Investment objective

The principal objective of the Company is to achieve a positive total annual return, after all expenses, of at least twice the Bank of England Bank Rate by investing predominantly in internationally listed or quoted equities or equity related securities (including convertibles) or bonds which are issued by corporate issuers, supnationals or government organisations.
